

Common areas in the units are clean but remain unusable until new security glass windows can be installed, damaged security doors are replaced, and new tables and chairs are put in for inmates to use. All of these things have been ordered.

Individual toilets and sinks in some cells and tier showers were destroyed by the participating inmates on Monday. Alternate unrestricted toilet access and restricted shower access is being provided for every inmate. Vendors and contractors are conducting assessments and will provide estimates on restoration to fixtures, including sinks and toilets, in the cells.

A restoration company was called in over the weekend to assess the fire and water damage and is expected to submit their estimate this week. Inmate phones that were destroyed were replaced and are operational.

Inmates have been afforded recreation, restricted to 3 cells at a time in 1-hour increments, to allow for out of cell time. MCCC continues to staff an armed perimeter as a precaution, but since removing the 21 inmates who aggressively participated in Monday's disturbance, the mood and overall atmosphere has calmed.

Medical staff continue to circulate through the modules to make sure all inmates who request a consult are seen.

The disturbance remains under investigation but, based on the actions by some of the inmates, it has become clear that the motivation behind the disturbance and subsequent unrest appears to be dissatisfaction with conditions related to the extreme overcrowded conditions.

We will provide further updates as they become available.
